The latest official bulletin from the Executive Mansion at Washington, at one o'clock this afternoon, says the condition of the President is not quite so favorable, there being an increase in the pulse which was not expected. He spent a very comfortable night, and during the morning talked much and ate all his physicians would allow. For the past two days his sleep has been refreshing, his appetite good, and his general strength on the increase. This condition led Dr. Hamilton, of New York to believe that the crisis had passed, and that his complete recovery was fully expected. The physicians in attendance at the White House announce that there will be no more official bulletins till evening.

"Surgically speaking," said one of the physicians attending upon President Garfield, "I don't think he will pull through; but knowing the luck which has attended him from his boyhood up, I think he will come out of it all right."

It is said Mr. Conkling keeps quiet in New York, and receives but few visitors; but it seems he had time on Wednesday to hold an hour's interview with Dorsey the star-route thief. At this particular time there is some significance in that interview.

The Supreme Court of Michigan has settled one question and that is that money loaned for the purpose of aiding an attempt to corner wheat can not in law be recovered. The ground for the decision is that "a combination entered into to artificially affect the price of any necessary of life is illegal, and money advanced in aid of an illegal scheme cannot be regained by procedure in the courts." The Supreme Courts of the States are doing some good work now in settling some long-disputed questions.

Soon after the October election, while General Garfield was at Mentor, he received the following letter, dated at New York, and written upon the letter-head paper of the Fifth Avenue hotel:

DEAR GENERAL: I, Charles Guiteau, hereby make application for the Austrian Mission. Being about to marry, wealthy and accomplished heiress in this city, we think that, Europe, we might represent this nation with dignity and grace. On the principle of first come, first served, I have faith that you will give this application a favorable consideration.

CHARLES GUITEAU.

This letter was shown General Garfield at the time as a curiosity, and several times since then he has referred to it as the greatest piece of audacity and impudence he had ever seen or heard of.

As dangerously as the President is wounded, there is a good deal of cheerfulness in the man, and at times he has strength enough to show a little temper because he can't have his own way. Last evening he began to find fault because the physicians would not give him enough to eat. He wanted beefsteak, but on being told that it would not be prudent to allow him to have any, he did a good deal of grumbling, but finally said he would say no more about it if they would give him an egg, and he ate the egg with a good deal of relish. In the afternoon he wanted to hold a cabinet meeting and talk over some public questions, but the physicians were compelled to talk to him in pretty plain language, and he finally agreed to be quiet.

The newspapers or the persons that are insinuating that Conkling and Arthur are at the bottom of the attempted assassination of President Garfield, do those gentlemen a shameless injustice. No man who can squarely look all the facts in the face, and can for a moment lay aside his prejudice, will entertain a shadow of a thought that either one of these persons, or any responsible man connected with the stalwarts, had anything to do with the assassination or knew anything about it until it had taken place. As cold, revengeful, and unrelenting in spirit as Mr. Conkling is, no sane man can charge that he is low enough to become an accomplice to such a hellish deed. Those who throw the enormous responsibility of the assassin upon him or his friends, outrage justice and insult the common intelligence of the people.

The question of imposing a tax on church property has been pretty well settled in New Hampshire, where recently a law was enacted taxing church property owned by a single society when the valuation exceeds $10,000. Under this law tax was recently imposed upon the Manchester Congregational church. The brethren refused to pay and were sued. Their refusal to pay was on the ground that the act imposing the tax was unconstitutional. The case was taken to the supreme court and that tribunal has decided that the law is constitutional; that the fact of past long exemption from tax does not effect the question, and that the church must pay. gradually the temper of the people are changing on the subject of taxing the property of religious societies, and it would not be very strange if within a few years States generally would follow the example of New Hampshire.

There is no class of institutions in the country which receive as many gifts in the way of money as colleges. Almost every rich man who has any philanthropic disposition, thinks he must do something for the colleges before he dies, and therefore makes a bequest. The following colleges received the sums named below during the year 1880:

Harvard	$500,000
Yale	250,000
Amherst	75,000
Tufts	120,000
Smith	48,000
Dartmouth	110,000
University of Vermont	50,000
Wesleyan	100,000
Colby	300,000
Buchtel (Ohio)	75,000
Chicago Industrial School	25,000
Wesleyan Female College (Georgia)	70,000

It will be seen all the money was not wisely given. Already Harvard has an immense endowment fund, and so has Yale, more than they can judiciously use, and yet their funds are rapidly increasing. Colleges that are rich are made richer, while the scores of smaller colleges which are doing a noble, pioneer work, are having a desperate struggle with debts and poverty. These things should not be. Men and women who have their millions, and millions more than they can ever use, would do themselves greater honor in this life and would have a higher reward in the life to come, did they give some of their surplus money to the schools and colleges that need the money, and not to those that are piling up their endowment funds simply as an ornament. Men are not always unselfish in their giving. They like to give too frequently to great colleges for the public honor there is attached to it. They want their right hand to know all about what their left hand doeth. They unwisely give to the rich colleges while the poor ones are forgotten and are left to struggle with misfortune and an empty treasury. If some of our "public benefactors" want to do some noble deeds of charity and place their surplus money where it will do the most good, they will remember the pioneer colleges in the West.

THE GUBERNATORIAL QUESTION.

The Fond du Lac Commonwealth thinks that a strong public sentiment will be shown for Governor Smith by the time the State convention meets. If he should be a candidate for re-election there would be a very strong following for him in the convention, and whether he is or not he would have the good will and the lasting confidence of the entire convention. This much can be said of Governor Smith, that he has made one of the very best Governor's Wisconsin ever had. His administration has been most excellent from whatever point of view it may be judged. It has been clean cut, thoroughly good, eminently practical, and the people cannot think of this without feeling warmly attached to Governor Smith. If there should be a "boom" for him, if public sentiment would demand his renomination, it would all come about without any work on his part. It would simply be an expression of the confidence the Republicans have in William E. Smith and the desire to honor him with another term. Should the multiplicity of candidates before the convention make it impossible for any of the more important ones to receive the nomination, it would not be at all strange if Governor Smith would receive the honor.

There is also a very strong sentiment and that was started some months ago, for Secretary of State Warner. He has made such an excellent officer, having displayed so much executive ability, and withal has made himself so popular with all classes, that it became a matter of public comment that he would, without any canvassing on his part, be a strong candidate for the governorship. He would honor the chair in the executive office as completely as he has filled the responsible position of Secretary of State. There is the right kind of stuff in the man which makes him strong and popular.

There are several other candidates—properly speaking, many others—and among them is Hiram Smith, of Sheboygan. Mr. Smith is one of the best representatives of the agricultural interests of the State, we have in Wisconsin. But he is more than that. He is a man of considerable ability and especially of that kind which would serve him well in the gubernatorial chair. The "people," and by that term is generally meant the farming and working classes, would be pleased with Mr. Smith at the head of the Republican ticket, and there is no doubt that he would be a very strong candidate.

There has never been a time in the history of the Republican party in this State when there was as many candidates for State offices as this year. The office fever seems to be epidemic. There have been no less than fifty names published which will likely come before the State convention for some position or another on the State ticket. Not all of these by any means are active candidates. Some of them are, and some of them have been drawn out by their friends and not at their request. But they are in the field all the same and in nearly all cases their names will come before the convention. With all these candidates in the field, the work of the convention is not likely to be quickly done, but we have the assurance that it will be well done, and that after the contention that body is over, there will be a general good feeling and a harmony of spirit which will lead the party to a honorable and worthy victory.

BADLY STRUCK.

WATERTOWN, Wis., July 7—At midnight lightning struck the barn owned by S. E. Fuller, sewing machine agent. The barn, together with a valuable horse, carriage, wagon, and several sleighs, was consumed. Loss, about $2,000; insured.

"GENTS: We will hang Conkling tonight at 9 sharp.

"COMMITTEE OF FOUR RIGHT FORWARD."

GREAT FAITH AND HOPE.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Mrs. Garfield has never lost faith in the President's recovery. She gave proof of this underlying confidence this morning in a practical way that also showed the thoughtfulness of a woman under all circumstances. Several of the correspondents were received this morning by one of the clerks with a message from the wife of the President. This message was: "I wish you would save me a set of your papers and some of your exchanges of the 3d, 4th, and 5th. I want to show them to the general when he gets well." There was no hesitation or qualification in the request. She was sure the President would want the papers.

NO CONSPIRACY.

The Authorities Do Not Predict Any Conspiracy in the Assassination.

WASHINGTON, July 6.—A reporter stopped Attorney General MacVeagh as he was leaving the White House last night, and asked him if he would allow the Star to make copies of the papers taken from Guiteau at the time of his arrest, and of those he left at the depot news stand.

"Not yet," said the attorney general, "but those papers will be made public just as soon as matters quiet down a little."

"Is there anything very important in them?"

"Nothing whatever. The newspapers have heard about all there is of any consequence."

"General," asked the reporter, "does the withholding of those papers indicate that you suspect that there was a conspiracy, and that you wish to hunt it out?"

"By no means. There is nothing whatever of any importance in these papers. We are all satisfied that there was no conspiracy.

A few minutes later the reporter met Colonel Corkhill going into the White House, and asked him when he proposed to let the papers be published. He said he could not tell exactly, but that all the newspapers would be informed. He also said that there was nothing of importance in those that are withheld.

"Colonel, it has been suggested that the papers tend to prove a conspiracy, and that they are held back for that reason. Is that so?"

"No the papers are trivial. There is really nothing in them. Those papers have been withheld at my request, and I will tell you my reason for doing so. The publication would gratify the egotism of that d—d assassin Guiteau, and I didn't propose to give him that much satisfaction. No, that is my only motive for keeping them secret."

Colonel Corkhill also stated that the authorities are all convinced that Guiteau had no confederate.

"There is a strange coincidence in this case," said Dr. Bliss to-day. "In looking over the records of the Surgeon General's office I find that one of the cases I had during the war, where the man was shot in the liver, recovered. He happened to be a soldier in General Garfield's regiment. His was a very interesting case. Another case I had during the war, somewhat similar, of a man shot through the liver. An abscess formed, and I put a tube in and washed it. He was shot in July, and he was a well man in December."

NO FINDING.

ALBANY, July 6—Mr. Scott, from the committee to investigate the charges of bribery made by Bradley and others, presented a report from a majority of the committee. The report says the charge and denial were both positive, and the evidence taken was circumstantial; and also that, pending the sessions of the committee, while summing up the evidence, Senator Sessions, Charles A. Edwards, and others were indicted by Albany county grand jury. The committee, therefore, think it would be improper for to prejudice the case now in the hands of the court. It, therefore, submitted the evidence taken. The report is signed by Scott, E. A. Carpenter, Draper, Skinner and Boardman.

THE COMET CONVULSED.

Great Disturbance of the Heavenly Wanderer Discovered by Professor Stone.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, July 6.—Professor Stone, of the Cincinnati observatory, says he has to-night discovered evidences of great disturbance in the nucleus of the comet. A very large portion of the nucleus has been thrown off, and has formed a separate nucleus. The distance between the two he estimates at 1,200 to 1,500 miles. The location of the new nucleus is toward the North star, and may be seen by the naked eye. The professor thinks this is the most marked phenomenon of the kind, on account of the magnitude of the seceding portion.

A Smooth Complexion.

Can be had by every lady who will use Parker's Ginger Tonic. For promptly regulating the liver and kidneys and purifying the blood there is nothing like it, and this is the reason why it so quickly removes pimples and gives a rosy bloom to the cheek. See notice.

STORM RAVAGES.

GALENA, July 6—For the third time within the past two years, a devastating storm is reported to have prevailed in the town of Stockton, this county, tearing down fences, demolishing two residences, blowing down and demolishing outbuildings, and uprooting orchards. The Baptist church roof was blown off and the building lifted two inches from its foundation, The storm is said to have been terrific, and scores of families took to the cellars for safety. The hurricane last year, which did thousands of dollars' worth of damage, was but little worse than the one just reported.

Joseph Durrinburger, Broadway, Buffalo, was induced by his brother to try THOMAS' ECLECTRIC OIL for a sprained ankle; and with half a dozen applications he was enabled to walk round again all right.

AND SPERMATORRHŒA.

A valuable Discovery and New Departure in Medical Science, as entirely New and positively effective Remedy for the speedy and permanent Cure of Seminal Emissions and Impotency by the only true way, viz: Direct Application to the principal Seat of the Disease, acting by Absorption, and exerting its Curative influence on the Seminal Vesicles, Ejaculatory Ducts, Prostate Gland, and Urethra. The use of the Remedy is attended with no pain or inconvenience, and does not interfere with the ordinary pursuits of life; it is quickly dissolved and absorbed, producing an immediate soothing and restorative effect upon the sexual and nervous organizations wrecked from self-abuse and excesses, stopping the drain from the eyes, restoring the mind to health and sound memory, removing the Dimness of Sight, Nervous Debility, Confusion of Ideas, Aversion to Society, Blotches, and the appearance of premature old age usually accompanying this trouble, and restoring perfect Sexual Vigor, where it has been dormant for years. This mode of treatment has stood the test in very severe cases, and is now a pronounced success. Drugs are too much prescribed in these troubles, and, as many can bear witness to, with but little if any permanent good. There is no Nonsense about this Remedy. Practical observation enables us to positively guarantee that it will give satisfaction. During the eight years that it has been in general use, we have thousands of testimonials as to its value, and it is now conceded by the Medical Profession to be the most rational means yet discovered of reaching and curing this very prevalent trouble, that is well known to be the cause of untold misery to so many, and upon which quacks prey with their useless nostrums and big fees. This Remedy is put up in neat boxes of three sizes. No. 1, enough to last a month, $3; No. 2, sufficient to effect a permanent cure, unless in severe cases, $5; No. 3, lasting over three months, will stop omissions and restore vigor in the worst cases, $7. Sent by mail, sealed, in plain wrappers. Full DIRECTIONS for using will accompany EACH BOX.

Send for Sealed Descriptive Pamphlet containing Correct Illustrations and Testimony, which will convince the most skeptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never crippled. Sold ONLY by

We believe that there is a large class of patent medicines whose ingredients are skillfully and conscientiously selected and compounded, and that they have been very useful in the domestic treatment of disease. We must come to this conclusion in precisely the same way that we come to the conclusion that a man is a skillful physician—by what they accomplish, and by the testimony of those who have used them. The reputation of a patent medicine is sustained by

THURSDAY, JULY 7, 1881

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE CITY

The Nihilist Government.

The conspirators have a regular Government of their own. They have occasional congresses of their representatives, an executive power, courts, an army, a police. They have a republican form of government. The Congress of Representatives chooses the Executive Committee and the editors of the clandestine journals, and decides, in principal, upon the policy to be pursued. The Executive Committee holds all the strings connecting the different circles (krujok), appoints the agents of police, the fighting corps, the finance sub-committee, the sub-committee on new members, and so on. The work of the conspirator is so admirably arranged that there can be no collision between the different departments as is often the case with the Czar's Government. Every conspirator is instructed to mind his own business. So, for instance, Kibalchitch was charged with the duty of preparing dynamite and bombs though he did not know when, where or by whom these articles would be used. So Rysakoff, though he was one of forty-eight volunteers for throwing bombs at the Czar, did not know when and where his services would be needed. So Jellaboff, though he voted against constructing a mine in Little Garden Street, yet obeyed orders and took part in digging it as diligently as anybody else.

The Executive Committee, in virtue of the urgency of the situation, is vested with the judicial power, and when occasion requires, it sits as a supreme court. It tried and condemned to death General Trepoff, the Governor of St. Petersburg, and the execution of that sentence was intrusted to Vera Sassulitch; Prince Krapotkin, the Governor of Kharkoff, who was shot and killed by the Nihilist Goldenberg; Baron Heicking, Colonel of Gendarmes, killed by an unknown Nihilist; General Mezentreff, Chief of the Third Section, stabbed and killed at noon on a street of St. Petersburg; General Dronteln, Chief of the Third Section, shot at but missed by Mirsky; General Melikoff, shot at but missed by Mladetsky; Czar Alexander Nicholaevitch, shot at but missed by Solovieff, and at last, after three unsuccessful attempts, killed by a bomb. A number of spies have also been tried, sentenced to death, and executed. And who in Russia knows where that court will stop?

The Nihilist police is undoubtedly a most wonderful and mysterious body. It is indeed ubiquitous and omniscient. It has means to see and to know what is going on in the Czar's private cabinet, in the secret State council, in the office of the Third Section. It is aware of the Czar's intention to go here or there, as if it were his most confidential friend. The explanation is this: Ladies of the highest rank, the maids of honor included, are fascinated by the daring Nihilist plans, and perhaps by the Nihilists themselves, and are performing the duty of spies on the Czar and his highest officers. It has been discovered that there are Nihilists among the civil and military officers, as well as among the agents of police. That is the reason why the chiefs of the police have repeatedly tried to "purify" the force, but all in vain. The Czar's police cannot bear comparison with the Nihilist police. There are hundreds of striking incidents proving the superiority of the latter. The latest case is this: The police suspected that there was a mine in construction; the officers made search for it in the very house where it was, and yet they did not find anything suspicious! The Nihilists, man and wife, who occupied the house, were reckless enough to stay at home three days after it became apparent that the mine was not needed, the Czar having been killed by a bomb, or perhaps they wanted to guard it for some future use. Who knows?

The Nihilist printing offices are a perpetual puzzle to the Government. More than half a dozen of the clandestine offices have been seized; each time the police thought that at last the Nihilists would be silenced. And yet there are new and ever new printing offices operating somewhere. It is an established fact that there are itinerant Nihilist printers who carry type about their persons. It has been found out also that some revolutionary proclamations were printed in the Government printing houses and that revolutionary printing presses were kept in the most respectable aristocratic houses. Now the Czar's police receive the secret publications as a matter of course, without the slightest hope of ever checking them.

The question of the Nihilist finances also baffles the Government. It is plain that the conspirators spend money as readily as if they commanded the Treasury. But nobody can tell whence the money is obtained. It is said here that a millionaire, on receiving an order from the Executive Committee, paid at once 50,000 roubles. He was rebuked by the Chief of Police, who said that the millionaire ought to have applied to the Government for protection. "Let the Government protect itself first and then I will believe that it may be able to protect me," was the reply.

Beaconsfield's Heir.

But before all these personages the chief interest (at the funeral) was centered upon a young boy of twelve, attired in a short, close-fitting Eton jacket, with wide, white collar turned over the coat. With pale, handsome face, fine, clear complexion, dark hair and soft black eyes, now dimmed with tears, he seemed to be what Disraeli must have been when he was young. It was Coningsby Disraeli, the nephew and heir of the dead Earl. Having no children this is the youth in whom Disraeli had centered his hope and ambition of founding a family, and if appearance is any criterion the b y has the dignity, composure and grace to wear worthily the honors thrust upon him. "The boy has the stuff of a man in him," said Lord Beaconsfield some time ago, "and I will give him a chance of being one," and he has kept his word. Beside Coningsby Disraeli walked a gentleman of fine appearance, with venerable head and snowy hair and whiskers, Mr. Ralph Disraeli, brother of the Earl and father of Coningsby. This pair, the only kinsmen of the Earl, were followed by all eyes, the objects of keen interest to every spectator.

A Tailor's Joke.

A tailor on Fort street got hold of a red-hot idea the other day. He heated up his goose to the blistering point and placed it on a bench at his door with a sign, reading: "Only twenty-five cents." In a few minutes along came an ancient-looking colored man with an eye out for bargains, and as he saw the goose and read the sign he made up his mind that he had struck it rich. He naturally reached out to heft his bargain, and that was where he gave himself away. The tailor almost fell down with his merriment; but it didn't last over sixty seconds. At the end of that time the victim entered the shop and began a sort of gymnastic performance which did not end until the tailor was a sadly mashed man and his shop in the greatest confusion. The two were fighting in front when an officer came along and nabbed both, and both were brought before his Honor together. The tailor appeared with a black eye and a finger tied up in a red rag, and the African had a scratched nose and was minus two front teeth.

"Well?" queried the Court, as the pair stood gazing at him.

"Vhell, I shall shpeak first," replied the tailor; "I likes to have a shoke sometimes, und so I put dot goose oudt dere. It vhas all in funs, und I am werry sorry."

"I couldn't see whar' de fun cum in," said the other. "Dis yere han' am all burned to a blister, an' I won't be able to use it for two weeks."

"Did you put that hot goose out there for a joke?" queried the Court.

"Yaw—it vhas only a shoke."

"And were you joking when you entered the shop and made things hum?" he asked of the other.

"No, boss, I wasn't. I'm an old man an' not much giben to laffin' an' cuttin' up. When I let go of dat goose I made up my mind to mash dat tailor flatter dan a billyard ball. It was my first fout for ober forty y'ars, but I'd got de bulge on him an' was usin' him up when de officer stepped in. No, boss, I wasn't jokin' 'bout dat time."

"Were you very tickled?" he queried of the tailor.

"Vhell, I vas tickled until he pitch into me."

"You were the only one who had any fun out of it?"

"Vhell, I 'spose so."

"Then you'll have to foot the bill. I shall let him go and fine you eight dollars."

"Dot ish pooty high."

"Yes, but it was a rich joke, you know."

"Maybe she vhas, but I guess I let dot goose cool off now. Here is five, six, seven, eight dollars, und now I shall go home. I bid you goot day."—Detroit Free Press.

Bridal Couples at Washington.

Along with the tender buds and the sweet flowers and the soft sighing of the south wind comes the blushing bride. Nature is in her softest mood, and the bridal couple are in the fullest harmony with nature. It is beautiful to note these charming correspondences, and observe how the great heart of nature throbs responsive to that of humanity. Softly the tender buds unfold their soft petals; softly the zephyrs blow; soft are the billowy cloud masses in the azure sky, and soft is the conduct of Chloe and Stephen in the hotel parlors. The hotel people laugh at them, the young married woman says it is shameful, the crusty old traveler grunts his disapproval, the staid married woman thinks sadly of the sweet memory in her own past, and the gay young bachelor utters an expressive yum! yum! while, unconscious of everything and everybody, the bridal couple keep on being in harmony with nature. It is a nice, sweet thing to be in harmony with nature, and bridal couples seem to have a monopoly of the business. Whether there is a better sample of nature here in Washington, or whether the section of nature that rules here is more sociable is not known even to the Weather Bureau, but certain it is that this is the paradise to which young married couples fly. "It seems to me that the number of bridal couples that come here is increasing each year," said a prominent hotel man yesterday. "We have had a great many this year, and at the present time there are eight couples in the house." The principal reason that this city is a favorite place for this class of people seems to be that it is a nice place to visit. That it is the political or social center of the country makes no difference to a bridal couple. They don't see anything or anybody but themselves; and what is more, they don't want to. No one ever knew of a bride or groom writing a book of travels, or giving any interesting accounts of what they see in the few letters they write home. They can't do it. She writes to say that she is well and happy, and then the sufferings and doings of John occupies the next page or two, leaving only a brief margin to say how splendidly that dress fitted. The scenery and the sights are left out in the cold. So the bridal couple come to Washington to see and be with each other, and they come here because people are expected to do as they please, and generally do it, and that is what they want to do. The ideal bridal couple that fits in exactly with the authorized and duly approved popular conception of a bridal couple are two people of the opposite sex who sit and hold each other's hands and gaze fondly into each other's eyes like two young calves, which is the simile of the cynic. The phenomena have long been observable, and philosophers, after much thought, have come to the conclusion that the explanation of the phenomena is as follows: The bride is generally a young female person having just left her home. She consequently feels strange and lonely. Instinctively she puts out her hand. The bridegroom is in full spiritual accord with the bride, and, as a result, he puts out his hand. The hands meet, are grasped. She feels satisfied. He is happy. This phenomenon, however, is no longer observed. Bridal couples now, in the hotel parlors, occupy two chairs, and at an easy conversational distance, and are observed to engage in conversation. Their sighs cannot be heard more than ten feet distant, and they do not object to conversing with people. She does not blush when anybody happens to glance at her, and he is not excessively conscious of having feet and hands. At the dinner table they have separate plates, and he does not feed her with a spoon. She has an appetite and eats heartily. After dinner he leaves her in the parlor and goes out and takes a smoke. He does not find her in tears on his return, nor does she sob out on his shoulder, "I felt so lonely while you were gone." Her dress is not crisp and new like a bank note, and he does not wear a new suit of clothes. They dress like other people, and don't give themselves away. In fact, there is a new kind of bridal couple going about the country. The hotel-keepers like the new style. They are quiet and well behaved and very much like other guests. They, however, insist upon the best accommodations, and exhibit an indifference to the amount of the bill, which delights the hotel people. There is nothing mean about the modern bridegroom on his wedding trip. He has a royal way of ordering things which is impressive. He acts as if he had an unlimited account at the bank. Whether this is the result of marriage is not known, or whether it is the consequence of the round trip railway ticket system is equally a matter of doubt. At any rate, they are not disturbed by sordid cares. The hotel-keepers regretfully speak of the near approach of the close of the bridal season. As the warm weather comes on the cooing doves direct their flight to Saratoga and other Northern resorts, and Washington is deserted. As an evidence of the increase of this class of patrons, nearly all the hotels in this city have fitted up a large number of rooms for the especial accommodation of bridal parties, and during the season they are all in demand.—Washington Paper.

The Crisis Discussed.

The night before last the Utica Croquet Club—composed entirely of young ladies—held its second meeting for the season of 1881. Two new members were admitted and proposals for membership were made. The committee on resolutions made their expected report. The resolutions were written on scented paper and penned with violet ink. After the business of the evening had been finished, the young lady sitting on the ottoman suddenly exclaimed:

"Oh, my! Girls, did you hear about Conkling?"

"No. What is it?" said the four misses on the settee in one breath.

"Why, he's resigned!"

"Resigned to what? Has he been dangerously sick?" said the Secretary.

"No, no. Can't you understand? He has given up his Senatorship."

"Goodness gracious! Ain't that too bad?"

"How much did he get for it?" queried the girl with the album in her lap.

"Why, you silly thing; you ought to read the newspapers. Senator Conkling got dissatisfied with something in Washington, and resigned his office into the hands of Governor Cornell. There was a misunderstanding between him and the President about some man named Rob—Robert—Roberts—Let me see. Robinson—No, that nin't it. Oh, yes—Robertson. Dear suz! They say the whole country is in a crisis."

"I read all about that," said the President of the club, knowingly. "Senator Conkling and this Robertson had some kind of a fuss—while they were trying a lawsuit. Come to think, Mr. Conkling wanted to give him some instructions and Robertson wouldn't have it. Then this President appointed Robertson to collect money in some ward in New York City—"

"That wasn't it," interrupted the first speaker. "The President told Mr. Robertson to stand at some lock—a dead-lock, they call it—and see that the canal-boat captain paid their tolls. The man who was put out of a job by Mr. Robertson getting the situation used to go to school with Conkling."

"What I want to know," said a young lady, "is how could the President order these men around so? Didn't I read in a paper the other day that Mr. Conkling was the boss?"

"My sakes! that's funny," ejaculated the Secretary; "I heard my brother say it was a man named Blaine, who came here from Canada, and wanted to run the whole country, who caused the disturbance. The President made this Blaine a present of a cabinet organ, and then he never stopped begging until he had got a whole set of furniture, too. That made the other men who don't get anything jealous."

"What were the guns fired for today?" asked the girls on the settee.

"You see, the Senate helped Robertson to get this job," answered the first speaker, "and the Half-breeds were so glad they borrowed some cannons."

"Who are the Half-breeds? Indians?"

"I am not sure, but I don't think they are. They must have come here when the canal opened."

"Girls," exclaimed the President of the meeting, "do you know I think that firing was a real battle? I read in the paper last week about the 'war on the President.' Isn't it awful?"

"And I saw 'how the bomb struck!'"

"Oh, those horrid Half-breeds!" ejaculated five voices at once.

"Yes," continued the President, "and I believe they are going to be commanded by that General Mahone, who came to Washington with a red shirt on and tried to scare everybody."

"I'm going home," faintly said the Secretary.

"Let us all go," said the girls on the settee.

"Oh, I hope we won't meet any Half-breeds."—Utica (N. Y.) Observer.

Boys and Their Mothers.

Some one has written beautifully to the boys in the following manner. Here is a whole sermon in a few sentences:

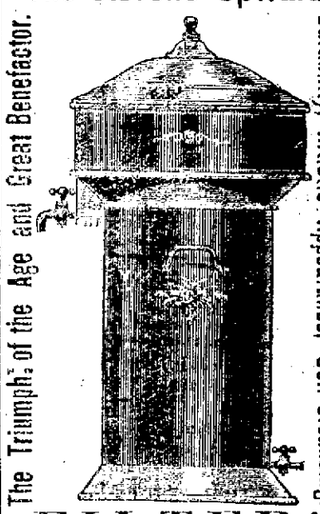

"Of all the love affairs in the world, none can surpass the true love of the big boy for his mother. It is pure love and noble, honorable in the highest degree to both. I do not mean merely a dutiful affection. I mean a love which makes a boy gallant and courteous to his mother, saying to everybody plainly that he is fairly in love with her. Next to the love of a husband nothing so crowns a woman's life with honor as this second love, this devotion of a son to her. And I never yet knew a boy 'turn out' bad who began by falling in love with his mother. Any man may fall in love with a fresh-faced girl, and the man who is gallant with the girl may cruelly neglect the worn and weary wife. But the boy who is a lover of his mother in her middle age, is a true knight, who will love his wife as much in the sere-leaved autumn as he did in the daisied spring-time."

—The last panacea for the woes of the British farmer is that he should grow tobacco. A writer advocates its cultivation in the midland and southern counties of England, and asserts that it would yield, if properly grown, a profit of £20 an acre. The cultivation of tobacco is at present forbidden in England, under an old act of Charles II., and in Ireland by an act of fifty years ago. Tobacco was cultivated in Ireland for some thirty years previous to this date.

—Fashion item: "Which had you rather be, a twinkling star in the heavens or a comet that with its broad train of fire sweeps in majestic course through unknown space?" "I should prefer by all means to wear a train," said she, "but not in unknown space. It would never be described in the newspapers."

BURNETT'S COCOAINE

Is Renowned as a Pure and Effective Hair Dressing in Every Quarter of the World.

For thirty years it has been a favorite with the people and a leader with the trade. The name "COCOAINE" has become a valuable property. Burnett & Co. have established their sole right to its use in several suits at law, thus protecting the public and themselves from imposition.

The superiority of BURNETT'S FLAVORING EXTRACTS consists in their perfect purity and great strength.

MILTON JUNCTION.

—The celebration at Clear Lake, on the Fourth, was, on the whole, the most successful held for many years, coming but one week after the camp-meeting, and with celebrations held in all the adjoining towns. The attendance was not so large as on some former occasions, but was doubtless the more enjoyable on that account. About 1,500 persons visited the grounds during the day, and probably one-half of that number remained in close attendance upon the exercises throughout. The Milton cornet band was at their best pleasing all their old friends, and making lots of new ones, by their soul stirring music. The oration before dinner, by President Williams, was pronounced by all who heard it to be the strongest, most comprehensive and eloquent oration to which they ever listened. After the picnic dinner a larger audience than that of the morning came together and spent about three hours in toasts and responses and volunteer speeches by various gentlemen. Among the toasts responded to was "The President of the United States" responded to by Rev. D. E. Maxon, of Alfred Center, N. Y. Dr. Maxon fully sustained his reputation in years past as an eloquent and scholarly orator. "The United States," was responded to by Rev. A. R. Cornwall, of Albion.

"A free ballot" was responded to by Prof. Place of Milton College.

"The day we celebrate" was responded to by, F. C. Buten, who at the close of his remarks called on President Williams to occupy a portion of his time, in doing which Mr. Williams by a slight divergence from the subject treated the audience to one of the finest off hand oratorical efforts in which he made a feeling allusion to President Garfield and made a powerful appeal in behalf of sustaining and upholding the hands of the President while in office instead of indulging in harsh criticism, creating dissatisfaction and building up a prejudice and feeling liable to lead to some overtact of violence and crime as in the present case. "The Clergy" was the theme assigned Rev. Mr. Miller, who handled it in a masterly manner. "The President of the day" was responded to by that individual himself, Mr. S. S. Obourn, of Milton. Volunteer speeches were made by Elder Wardner, E. Goodrich, M. Pratt and others, followed by music by the band, and the audience dispersed, feeling that they had enjoyed a field day of fat things. The fire works in the evening at the Junction was watched by a very large crowd from all the country round.

—Rev. D. E. Maxon will preach in the Seventh-Day Baptist church here on next Saturday morning, at the usual hour.

—Miss Lottie Sherbourn, Miss Ella Corey, of Chicago, in company with two young ladies from Walworth, spent last week, guests at the home of the Clark brothers.

LA PRAIRIE.

—School district No. 2, La Prairie, will have their closing exercises at Grange hall, Thursday, July 14th. After the exercises there will be a dance. A good time is expected.

ROCK PRAIRIE.

—Mr. David Clark let the young people have a dance in his new barn, which proved to be a grand success. A match floor of 26 by 84 feet furnished ample room for the large crowd. Sixty-eight numbers were sold. Tuckwood's band of five pieces furnished the music.

—We are glad to see the smiling face of Dr. E. W. Stevens among us again, having arrived last week from California, where he has been spending the winter recruiting his health and attending to his profession.

—Mrs. Alice Loyd, of Chicago, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Butts.

—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tasker, of Beloit, were visiting their relatives and friends during the Fourth.

—Everybody went to the city the Fourth and had a good time.

—Some miserable wretch put rails and stumps in the road the night of the dance at Mr. Clark's, but they were seen and removed before any harm was done.

Kidney Complaint Cured.

B. Turner, Rochester, N. Y., writes: "I have been for over a year subject to serious disorder of the kidneys, and often unable to attend to business; I procured your BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS and was relieved before half a bottle was used. I intend to continue, as I feel confident that they will entirely cure me." Price $1.00, trial size 10 cents.

The Dark Day in Canada.

In some interesting and graphic reminiscences of Montreal sixty years ago, Mr. J. H. Dorwin writes to the Montreal Star as follows:

"What was the strangest occurrence of that time, or rather the strangest thing that ever happened in the history of this country, was what has always been known as the 'Phenomenon of 1819.' On the morning of Sunday, November 8, 1819, the sun rose upon a cloudy sky, which assumed, as the light grew upon it, a strange greenish tint, varying in places to an inky blackness. After a short time the whole sky became terribly dark, dense black clouds filling the atmosphere, and there followed a heavy shower of rain, which appeared to be something of the nature of soapsuds, and was found to have deposited after settling a substance in all its qualities resembling soot. Late in the afternoon the sky cleared to its natural aspect, and the next day was fine and frosty. On the morning of Tuesday, the 10th, heavy clouds again covered the sky, and changed rapidly from a dark green to a pitchy black, and the sun, when occasionally seen through them, was sometimes of a dark-brown or an unearthly yellow color, and again bright-orange, and even blood-red. The clouds constantly deepened in color and density, and later on a heavy vapor seemed to descend to the earth, and the day became almost as dark as night, the gloom increasing and diminishing most fitfully. At noon lights had to be burned in the court house, the banks and public offices of the city. Everybody was more or less alarmed, and many were the conjectures as to the cause of the remarkable occurrence. The more sensible thought that immense woods or prairies were on fire somewhere to the west; others said that a great volcano must have broken out in the Province; still others asserted that our mountain was an extinct crater about to resume operations and to make of the city a second Pompeii; the superstitious quoted an old Indian prophecy that one day the Island of Montreal was to be destroyed by an earthquake, and some even cried that the world was about to come to an end.

"About the middle of the afternoon a great body of clouds seemed to rush suddenly over the city and the darkness became that of night. A pause and hush for a moment or two succeeded, and then one of the most glaring flashes of lightning ever beheld flamed over the country, accompanied by a clap of thunder which seemed to shake the city to its foundations. Another pause followed, and then came a light shower of rain of the same soapy and sooty nature as that of two days before. After that it appeared to grow brighter, but an hour later it was as dark as ever. Another rush of clouds came, and another vivid flash of lightning, which was seen to strike the spire of the old French parish church and to play curiously about the large iron cross at its summit before descending to the ground. A moment later came the climax of the day. Every bell in the city suddenly rang out the alarm of fire, and the affrighted citizens rushed out from their houses into the streets and made their way in the gloom toward the church, until Place d'Armes was crowded with people, their nerves all unstrung by the awful events of the day, gazing at, but scarcely daring to approach, the strange sight before them. The sky above and around was as black as ink, but right in one spot in mid-air above them was the summit of the spire, with the lightning playing about it shining like a sun. Directly the great iron cross, together with the ball at its foot, fell to the ground with a crash, and was shivered to pieces. But the darkest hour comes just before the dawn. The glow above gradually subsided and died out, the people grew less fearless and returned to their homes, the real night came on and when next morning dawned everything was bright and clear and the world was as natural as before. The phenomenon was noticed in a greater or less degree from Quebec to Kingston, and far into the States, but Montreal seemed its center. It has never yet been explained."

An Artistic Heaven.

A retired manufacturer, one of the practical sort of men, who had more of the love of display than æsthetic taste to properly sustain it strolled into the studio of a New Haven artist a few years ago, and after examining some of the paintings thrust his thumb into the armholes of his vest, and clearing his throat, said to the artist:

"Ahem! I have thought for some time that I would give you an order for a picture."

"Should be happy," replied the artist modestly.

"What I should like would be a picture representing a child at prayer, with an angel hovering over it, and a view of Heaven in the distance. Could you paint a picture like that?"

"Y-e-s, I think so," was the rejoinder.

"Very well, you can paint it. I care nothing about the expense, if it only suits me. I'll pay one hundred and fifty dollars for it."

Now the artist was a trifle perplexed as to the detail of the work before him. The child at prayer and the hovering angel were simple enough; any dabster with a brush could paint those. But the "Heaven in the distance" was not so easily overcome. Calling in a friend he consulted with him. "How do you suppose Heaven looks, anyhow?"

"Well," said the friend, waggishly, "I suppose it looks something like the first view of the city of Albany, the great dome of the capitol in the center —and——"

"That's the idea," exclaimed the artist, "I see. I will paint the figures, and a sky full of clouds with a hole in the center, and put Albany in for the Heaven."

A pictorial sketch of Albany was immediately sent for, the artist finished the picture with that ancient city of the Dutch as the distant Heaven, the patron of art was delighted, paid the bill, and the picture hung in his parlor in this city for a long time.—New Haven Register.

—The Hour tells a fanciful story of a rich clothier who was about to build a mansion. Visiting the private house of a great publisher in order to get some ideas, the clothier and his wife were shown into the library. A happy thought occurred to the lady. "By the way," said she, appealing to her husband, "why can't we have books?"

—It is said that one cord of birch wood weighs 2,368 pounds. Jones, who remembers his childhood days, thinks it would weigh a good deal more than that. He says that one little twig of birch used to weigh a ton when the schoolmaster got hold of the thither end of it.—Boston Transcript.

BRIEFLETS.

—Seek the shade.

—Cairns' new store has reached its second story. It has a burglar proof rear.

—In the case of Lackner against Collins in the circuit court, a motion for a new trial has been ove rruled.

—One of Janesville's citizens yesterday spied Kate Lynch on Canal street in Chicago. She was drunk, as usual. Kate is making a long stay from the jail here.

—The Baptist lawn social last evening at the home of J. A. Leland was a successful and happy occasion. The Bower City band furnished excellent music, and all the doings were very joyous ones.

—The case of Elias Holmes, charged with assault, has come to a close, the jury finding him guilty. Justice Wickham fined him $1 and costs, but the costs amounted to $63, so that the penalty was pretty severe.

—H. W. Wilcox sold yesterday to Messrs Carleton & Rooney, of Janesville, seventy-one three and four year old steers for seventeen hundred dollars.—Beloit Free Press.

—He hadn't quite recovered from the Fourth, and he kept a firm grip on the lamp-post, and gazed steadily at the comet, wondering why that sky rocket didn't explode and come down. When last seen he was still watching and waiting.

—The Wadsworth will case has been decided, the jury bringing in a verdict which breaks up the will, in accordance with the widow's desire. A motion was made to set aside the verdict and admit the will to probate, and further argument on it will be made next Tuesday.

—A son of D. G. Harvey was yesterday afternoon firing blank cartridges in a pistol, and by some means a pebble got stuck in the barrel. He was trying to get this out when the pistol was discharged, and the pebble sent through his thumb, causing a severe wound, which may cause him to lose at least a tip of that member.

—The officers and members of the Beloit City Guards, wish to return their thanks to the Bower City Rifles, of Janesville, whose armory was kept open on the Fourth until a late hour, to accommodate the Guards; also to agent Charley Potter, of the C. & N. W. railroad for his gentlemanly interest in endeavoring to arrange to have their car run to Beloit. The Guards feel that they were well entertained by the Janesville military companies.—Beloit Free Press.

—Last evening Charles Preller, night watchman at the cotton factory, was hanging up his coat, in the pocket of which was his revolver, when the weapon was discharged by some unknown cause, probably by hitting against something, and the ball went through the muscles of his thigh a little below the groin, and coming very close to some large blood vessels, and making a very serious wound, but one which will not probably prove fatal. Dr. Palmer cared for the wound, and thinks that there is a good chance for recovery.

—A few weeks ago a young married woman and a lady friend were walking along Milwaukee street, when they were accosted very rudely and insultingly by a young man. The ladies did not like to appear in the police court against the young fellow, and so spoke quietly to an officer. The officer on meeting the young man, slapped his face for him, as a warning not to insult other young ladies; but it soon appeared that the officer had slapped the wrong fellow, it being a brother of the young man. The brother proposed to sue for damages, have the officer arrested for assault, etc., but finally through his lawyer settled the matter. The officer paid the brother $40 for damages, but before the lawyer could pay it over to his client, it war garnisheed for some debts of the client and so the injured young man got nothing. A short time after the husband of one of the ladies insulted, sought to take vengeance in his own hands, and having the offender pointed out to him, he proceeded to slap him, and blackened one eye, but like the officer he too made a mistake, and slapped the wrong fellow, it being this same brother again. This brother is getting about discouraged at having to stand punishment which he has not merited and all because of relationship.

A Great Enterprise.

The Hop Bitters Manufacturing Company is one of Rochester's greatest business enterprises. Their Hop Bitters have reached a sale beyond all precedent, having from their intrinsic value found their way into almost every household in the land.—Graphic.

A HAPPY WEDDING.

Last evening a matrimonial event occurred in Chicago, which will surprise the many friends and acquaintances of the bride in this city, as the preparations have been so quietly carried forward that none but intimate friends had even a hint of it. The event nevertheless will call forth many congratulations here. The contracting parties were Mr Henry M. Lemon a prominent and prosperous druggist of Ripon, and Miss Hattie E. Brace, who is so well known in this city, and who has so many friends here. Rev. T. P. Sawin, of this city officiated, the ceremony being performed at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Bigelow, and in the presence of the family friends of both parties, among them being Mrs. Willard, Dr. Hobart and wife, Mrs. Lemon, Mr. Phelps, of Detroit, Lucius Hopkins, of Ripon, Miss Elmira Hobart, of this city, Miss Helen Brace of Evanston, and Miss Amanda Brace, of Janesville. The last named and Mr. Hopkins served as bridesmaid and groomsman. A large number of elegant presents, including several choice pictures, were bestowed upon the newly wedded pair, and congratulations and well wishes were many and hearty. A congratulatory telegram was received from Smith Norton and wife, Miss Auna Gordon and Miss Frances E. Willard, sent from Bethlehem, N. H. The bride was dressed in blue satin d'Lyon, with orange flowers and vail, and all the details of the event were elegant, and the occasion a most happy one for all present. Many friends here will join with friends in other places in wishing much brightness in the future of both bridegroom and bride. The wedded ones left Chicago last evening for Oshkosh, and will proceed from there to Ripon, where an elegant home awaits their occupancy.

PERSONAL.

—Isaac Farnsworth is more comfortable to-day.

—R. J. Richardson returned this afternoon from his eastern trip.

—Ed. Hall, of Beloit, is getting to be a nimble bicyclist. He rolled from that city to this and returned the other day, with ease.

FOR killing flies and all kinds of insects there is nothing equal to the Genuine Insect Powder sold by Prentice and Evenson, the Druggists opposite the Post office, Janesville, Wis.

TERRIBLE FALL.

About 11 o'clock this forenoon Spencer H. Phelps, son of Sherman Phelps, while at work on Randall Williams' new block, fell from the wall at the top of the second story, to the sidewalk beneath, a distance of twenty-six feet. He was at once taken to Dr. St. John's office where his injuries were found to be many and serious. His face and head were in a frightful condition, his nose being badly broken, and one eye seriously hurt, while some severe scalp wounds and bruises were apparent. The left arm was broken near the elbow, and his right hip broken. From the doctor's office he was removed to his home, where he will be confined for some time by his injuries, even if he is so fortunate as to recover.

A Safe and Sure

Means of restoring the youthful color of the hair is furnished by Parker's Hair Balsam, which is deservedly popular from its superior cleanliness.

DEPOT BURNED.

Last night about 2 o'clock the lightning struck the depot at Brodhead, running along the telegraph wires into the office, at the southwest corner of the building, and setting fire to some papers, and then to the woodwork, and the blaze did not stay until it had reduced the whole building and contents to ashes. There was about $1,000 worth of freight in the building, consisting of some rich furniture, some household goods, windmills and pumps, and some general merchandise. The books and blanks, also the tickets in the office, were saved. The safe is in the ruins yet, and whether its contents are intact or not cannot be determined. The total loss of building and contents will probably be under $5,000.

No Hospital Needed.

No palatial hospital needed for Hop Bitters patients, nor large salaried talented puffers to tell what Hop Bitters will do or cure, as they tell their own story by their certain and absolute cures at home.

Dr. Price makes chronic ailments his specialty, devoting his entire attention to the investigation of their causes and the search for remedies for their cure or alleviation. He is thoroughly educated as a physician, and by long practice of the healing art has come to a full knowledge of the causes of the various forms of chronic disease, and the proper remedy. When informed of the symptoms and duration of the disease he will at once, and honestly, tell the applicant the prospect for an ultimate cure.

Dr. Price makes his next visit at Janesville, Myers House, on Saturday the 16th of July.
